Project Context

Swiss Agency for Development and Cooperation (SDC) has since 1998 continuously supported the two entity Ministries of Health in Bosnia and Herzegovina in implementing their reform agenda through the Family Medicine Implementation Project (FaMI). During the implementation of the FaMI project, which phased out in March 2011, major gaps in nurses' education and practice were identified, hindering the effective operation of the country's health system and constraining further reform progress. A number of interlinked and interdependent challenges had been identified related to the nurse's status, role and competences in the health care system. Despite being the backbone of the health system in BiH, they are overloaded, undervalued and underrepresented in management structures. Some challenges identified are: lack of standards for nursing practice, absence/sporadicity of licensing systems for nurses, lack of continuous education for nurses, inadequate formal education, inadequate job descriptions and nurses' post classification, limited possibilities for career development and no or very limited access to the international nursing knowledge bases. This is exacerbated by increasing emigration of nurses to developed countries.

Project goal and purpose

The project's purpose is improved quality of primary health care services and enhanced access of the most vulnerable and socially excluded population groups to these services, with the overall goal of improving health outcomes in BiH. The overall purpose of improved quality and access is to be achieved by the combined interventions in three project areas (pillars):

Pillar 1: Nurses professional environment;

Pillar 2: Access to community nursing;

Pillar 3: Public education in nursing.

Project intervention strategy

The project will primarily play a facilitation role, providing technical advice and quality control to local institutions and partners in implementing needed changes and improvements. However, a range of implementation tasks will also have to be assumed in areas where there is insufficient local knowledge and/or where a transfer of international knowledge appears particularly beneficial. In terms of geographical coverage, the project intervenes across Bosnia and Herzegovina: the Federation of BiH, the Republika Srpska and Brcko District.

Component Intervention Strategy

The aim of Pillar 2 is that citizens, especially vulnerable and socially excluded groups, benefit from gendersensitive community nursing services in 22 municipalities in BiH.

The intention behind this pillar is extension of standardised community nursing services in the selected municipalities in congruence with international standards, prioritised needs of vulnerable and socially excluded groups of the population, and the local context.
