Mercury Processing Services International d.o.o.

Technical Lead (m/f)

Changing the future of digital payments takes strong leadership. Do you have what it takes to develop and deliver software that provides mission-critical services to Blue Chip Banking and Financial Services Clients across Europe? We are looking for colleagues who live, breathe and relish these challenges. Your success will be determined not just by your qualification and professional acumen, but also from the experience you bring and your personality and ambition to make a difference. You'll be powering an easier tomorrow for us all! We are on an exciting growth journey. We've set out to make it easier and more intuitive for people to make payments and for our Clients to handle payments. Visa or MasterCard, Acquiring or Issuing - you name it and we are doing it, because we see it as the foundation for growth and progress both in commerce and society. As a Technical Lead in the Architecture department, you'll join an open and sharing community with highly skilled colleagues. This is a complex role, and we are looking for a person with strong software development background who will closely work with development teams in order to implement new features and functionalities according to application architecture design set by Application Architects, a person capable to maintain in-depth knowledge of the application's technology and architecture, but also to communicate architectural decisions, plans, goals and strategies towards development teams. Your main objective will be to facilitate the development of new features and functionalities according to application design, define and maintain low-level design technical documentation and support application architects in the software design process.
