Airline and Fleets Data Researcher (m/f)

We are ch-aviation. A company that specialises in data research. Once we collect and verify the data, we present it in our online database (for example: if someone wants to get in touch with a C-level manager of an airline, we can provide them with the information you have researched). If you would call yourself a persistent and well-organized person, we are here to offer you a full-time position in a growing international aviation company! Your prime focus will be working on existing data sets and adding new data on the aviation industry into our database. You would be a part of our Data team located in Zagreb.
